

How to cite the textbook.

CJC1162-Parole & Probation

References

Alarid, L. F. (2013). Community-based corrections (9th ed.). Belmont, CA:

Wadsworth.

National Institute of Justice. (n.d.). Crime & crime prevention: Corrections & reentry.

Retrieved from CrimeSolutions.gov website:

<https://www.crimesolutions.gov/TopicDetails.aspx?ID=2>

In-text citation:

According to Alarid (2013), one of the functions of community corrections is population control of crowded prisons.

One of the functions of community corrections is population control of crowded prisons (Alarid, 2013).

“Currently, 20 percent of all people released from prison do not receive any post-prison supervision” (Alarid, 2013, p. 54).

“The total national, federal, and state-level direct expenditures for corrections...was $74 billion in 2007” [NIJ, n.d., para. 3). Most state prison inmates were serving time for violent offenses (NIJ, n.d.).

n.d. = “no date” (publication date not known)

p. = page

para. = paragraph